Education software downloads - Wolfram Mathematica by Wolfram Research, Inc. This invention relates to an inkjet head and a fabrication method thereof. A conventional inkjet head is composed of a number of grooves formed by etching a silicon substrate, and arrays of nozzles are formed in the silicon substrate. The inkjet head ejects ink from the nozzles by the application of a drive pulse. In order to eject ink from the nozzle, it is necessary to form each of the grooves having a depth that is approximately equal to the depth of the nozzle, and to form a thin film, which is the meniscus, on the side surface of the groove. The thin film has a shape that is a little larger than that of the nozzle, and is formed by forming a thin film on
