
You can learn about tarot in this book ViceVersaTarotKitbookpdf This book will teach you all about the different cards and how to read them. It also tells you what each card is about in detail. This book will help with your tarot reading skills. You can also purchase it for $5 on Amazon or download it for free.

#2 Point of View - Think creatively Every point of view is different, so it's time to think outside the box! Pick something off the shelf and start writing an introduction to a blog post discussing its details from your point of view.

#3 Write a Quiz Think of a question that you would like to know the answer to it. Write about it in your blog post.

#4 Idea Journaling This is similar to the idea journaling that was in the article my First Night in College, but in my opinion, this time they will be more helpful. Use this time to clarify ideas and allow yourself time to hone your thoughts

#5 Interview (also known as p2p) - You can create an interview with someone who is interesting or important for you. The deal with the interview is that you will ask questions to this person and he can also ask you questions. This is a good way to get started with blogging.

#6 Essay - Write an article about something that happened in your life recently or long time ago. You can write about your personal experience, for example, you can tell people about one traumatic event in your life, why are you are grateful for it, etc... This will help people understand yourself more.

#7 How To Tips - Write some tips how to do things better or some good advice on certain topics. This will help people who are not sure on what they should do in certain situation or how they should do things better.

#8 Blog Tour - This is the same thing as #7, but this time you will write an article about some new thing that happened in your life. #9 Gallery - This is a form of journaling where you can write about some of your favorite photos or pictures. It can be anything from your photo album, your camera, etc... But all of these pictures are yours to choose.

#10 Forwards / Favourites / Thanks - You can write some forwards or favourites about people who did something important for you or did something good for you. These are great blog posts because they are personal and shows how grateful you are to people who did something good for you.

All About Yourself - About Me, About Yourself - This is the blog where you will write about yourself, so that people can understand who you are more clearly. You can talk about why did you decide to start this blog, what are your interests in life, what do you like to do, etc...

blogs/archive/2010/05/19/about-myself-a-photo.html #11 Profile - This is an important part of any blog because it will give people an idea on what kind of person this author is. This information can help make them want to learn more about this author's opinion on different topics. imgur.
