If you are a Gemini and this is your first time visiting this web page, you may not know what your birthday is. Do not worry about it. The point is you were born in the same year as Jack Kerouac, Vincent Van Gogh and many other artists. No one knows why the date of your birth has become so significant to the world. Maybe it is because your birth date actually reveals the date your life changed forever and how you will be perceived by the world. Liposomal Bupivacaine with Adjuvant Naproxen Provides Analgesic Efficacy and Safety comparable to Local Anesthetic Cream in Decubitus Ulcers After Total Knee Arthroplasty: A Randomized, Controlled, Single-Blinded Study. Decubitus ulcers (DU) represent a serious complication after total knee arthroplasty (TKA). This study aimed to compare analgesic efficacy and safety of a liposomal bupivacaine (LB) with adjuvant naproxen to local anesthetic (LA) cream in TKA-related postoperative DU. Patients with TKA-related postoperative PU were included in this randomized, controlled, single-blinded study. Pain was assessed with the visual analog scale (VAS) score at rest and on active flexion/extension at 12 h, 24 h, and 48 h after surgery. Modified von Rijssen score was used for ulcer classification. Blood samples were collected for thromboxane B2 (TXB2), 6-keto-PGF1 $\alpha$  and high-sensitivity C-reactive protein (hs-CRP) levels. LA cream and LB with naproxen (NAP) were injected into the PU during dressing change at 24 h after surgery. LA cream, LB, and NAP were applied on the ulcer surface once daily for 7 days. The primary endpoint was the VAS pain score at rest and on active movement at 48 h after surgery. The secondary endpoints included the ulcer severity at 48 h, TXB2, 6-keto-PGF1 $\alpha$  and hs-CRP levels at 48 h, incidence of systemic side effects, and time to the first analgesic request during dressing change. A total of 109 patients were randomized to the three treatment groups. All groups had comparable baseline
