Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a steering apparatus for a vehicle, and more particularly, to a steering apparatus for a vehicle that may be applied to a steering system of a vehicle and be able to reduce the height of a steering wheel and provide a large driving space. 2. Description of the Related Art Recently, there have been increased number of passenger car companies focusing on fuel efficiency, and thus there is a growing need for an improved steering system for a vehicle. In order to improve the fuel efficiency of a vehicle, a steering system of the vehicle, such as a steering wheel, a steering column, etc., should be more efficiently disposed to reduce weight and size. In addition, to provide a comfortable driving environment, a large driving space should be provided. In order to provide a large driving space, a large steering
