.10.zip.xz ? Xethron, after making sure you are on the desktop, cd Desktop; tar.xzvf gedit-3.20.0-rc1.tar.xz; sudo apt-get install gedit I tried searching for that site with chromium, firefox and IE11 I'm trying to make a bootable USB that will allow me to run from an SD card to a PC. I'm having some issues with the 12.10 installers. Is it possible to skip the guided partitioning section? let me try That was it, all the torrent files had that.md5,.sha256,.sha512 or so ext in their names Xethron, You may or may not need a reboot of this, but do the other commands and pastebin the outcome. ill tell you after I had used the torrent from releases.ubuntu.com/precise/ jimmy51v_, how are you trying to install, and to what end? jimmy51v_, I ask because the install is usually partitioning and not sure how you want to load it Thanks wileee I'll be back after rebooting to try it out IhrFussel: and they are not unique for each release. every torrent you get will contain the md5sum of every file on the iso wileee: I have a PC that has Ubuntu on it and a raspberry pi that has a working raspbian installed. I've tried the regular install from a usb drive, and the one on a sd card. the raspbian installer works fine, but the Ubuntu installer fails. I would prefer to boot from the SD card jimmy51v_, Ah, so the os is atm the usb? wileee: Yes, it's on an SD card. k11_, ah
