I am new to PHP and have a very hard time figuring out how to do this properly. I know how to use `preg_match`, but this is where I am stuck. Can anyone help me figure out how to go about this? Thanks!

A: It works fine. Something fishy with you or your PC/browser. If it still doesn't, try changing your regex a bit:

preg_match("/crucc 2\.2 \d+.\d+/", $userdata);

P.S.: you may need to parse the DOM of a webpage to extract the information instead of relying on a user supplied string.

OTTAWA — The federal government is investing $110.6 million in the Police and Emergency Response Unit, less than 2 per cent of the $16.5-billion military budget but more than 10 per cent of the $1.6-billion it spends annually in all police services in Canada. That cost is part of an overall police budget that was cut as part of last week's federal budget, with the government cutting $866 million from its planned spending for the 2015-16 fiscal year. Defence Minister Rob Nicholson said the
