A conventional device for the regeneration of exhaust gas by means of water injection is known, for example, from EP-A-0 577 673. It is not known how exactly an expansion engine operating with water injection would be controlled in accordance with the teaching of the cited publication. The present invention concerns a control arrangement for the operation of a device for the regeneration of exhaust gas via the injection of water, in particular, the control arrangement for such a device which is adapted to the operation of an internal combustion engine with water injection having a low temperature of the exhaust gas in the inflow of the device. -----When written out as “cancer” it can take on a misty, abstract air. After all, it can affect any number of tissues, and even a group of related cells may undergo a particular type of malignancy that differs in many ways from others. But malignancy itself is an all-embracing term, with no real boundary between it and something simply painful or detrimental. Like all the other disorders associated with it, cancer is something to be managed and, in time, defeated. A Republican U.S. Senate candidate from Missouri who refused to rule out prosecuting President Barack Obama in court because he is a foreigner should be booted off the ballot, a state court has ruled. Clay Ernest Hightower, who is running against Democratic Sen. Claire McCaskill, was named the winner of the March 10 primary runoff election after putting him face-to-face with the other candidate in the run-off election, Josh Hawley, over allegations he misused taxpayer-funded taxpayer-
