Postoperative adjuvant therapy (PAT) remains controversial in stage II colon cancer. We performed a retrospective analysis to evaluate the role of PAT on prognosis in stage II colon cancer. We identified 805 patients with stage II colon cancer who underwent curative surgery from 2003 to 2008. Kaplan-Meier method was used to evaluate overall survival (OS). Univariate and multivariate analyses were used to identify risk factors of relapse and death. The median follow-up time was 45 months. The 5-year OS rate was 76.1%. In univariate and multivariate analysis, tumor location, lymphovascular invasion (LVI), and postoperative adjuvant therapy were identified as prognostic factors. Multivariate analysis revealed that surgical approach, adjuvant chemotherapy, and LVI were significant independent prognostic factors for OS. Of the patients with LVI, there were no differences in OS between the adjuvant chemotherapy and control groups ($p=0.644$). The patency of PIVKA-II was significantly higher in patients who received adjuvant chemotherapy than in patients without adjuvant chemotherapy (10.5% vs 5.4%, $p=0.037$). The patency of PIVKA-II and the adjuvant chemotherapy were identified as independent prognostic factors for OS. Postoperative adjuvant chemotherapy did not affect OS in patients with LVI.Q: Evaluate $\int \frac{dz}{(z-1)(z-2)}$ I need help solving this integral. I can make all the required

Max-FTP Downloads: In a nutshell, I'm not trying to manipulate any hardware using the PC BIOS. No weird bios tweaks, no software-based key-loggers, nothing. All I'm trying to do is use the PC BIOS to detect when a live CD is being accessed, and then allow additional options to be presented in the PC BIOS. So, what is the video displaying? It displays the contents of the video drive that I believe is the mIRC process. It should display my actual keyboard which is definitely NOT missing any keys. What do you think is happening? Yeah, that's the only way I've ever heard of to install a USB keyboard on an old PC BIOS. You're lucky that it happened to work for you. I am wondering though if your machine ever had a keyboard that was partially plugged in, because I've heard that sometimes they won't recognize the keyboard if it is plugged into the USB port in the back, and another port that is in the front, but I don't know how that would fit into the computer properly. Well, whatever that means. I installed Ubuntu on my old HP DV6000 computer a long time ago, which has all sorts of weird and different usb ports in various places, and it worked out just fine. I am absolutely POSITIVE that it isn't a hardware issue. If there was a hardware issue, the keyboard wouldn't work. So yeah, I'm going to have to look at it further. If you have any idea what might be wrong, then I would be happy to hear it. The video looks like something on a password system, and if that's the case, then I've already ruled out the video drive. If the screen is showing the entire
