Down to Earth will return to the Cubs' lineup Friday for the second straight game after missing the first inning of Tuesday's game because of an abdominal strain. Up against the White Sox, which will start Tim Anderson on the mound, Manager Joe Maddon said he was optimistic he could get Down to Earth (4-3) back in the mix for the next few games. Down to Earth is 2-0 with a 4.25 ERA in his last four starts. "He's like a batter in the box," Maddon said. "He's really good at controlling the damage." Maddon also dismissed the idea he would add to his bench, with Carlos Santana and Kyle Schwarber his top replacements. Schwarber hit a double off Jose Quintana in Tuesday's loss. On the surface, the plan is to give Santana the start against the White Sox and then rotate him and Schwarber against the Brewers on Friday. "I'm not going to leave him out there every night if I'm comfortable," Maddon said. "You'd probably make the same thing out of that. It'd be a pretty smart way to do it if you asked me." Asked if he's content to put Santana in and sit Schwarber, Maddon said: "Absolutely not.... I will tell you what, they're both going to be really good." Jumbo shrimp Maddon ended Tuesday's loss by handing Down to Earth the ball and demanding the pitcher throw a fastball. From a strategic standpoint, it was the right move d0c515b9f4
