The production of nitroalkenes from nitroaromatics is known in the literature (German Pat. No. 1,083,377; U.S. Pat. Nos. 2,211,878, 3,077,480 and 3,231,587). It is also well known that these nitroalkenes react in a catalytic reaction under acidic conditions with hydrogen cyanide or formaldehyde to give the corresponding cyanocarboxylic acid amides (German Pat. Nos. 1,185,269, 1,384,106 and 1,511,892). A disadvantage of the known processes is that, for the preparation of the nitroalkene
