To determine the treatment efficacy of a new hybrid brace (HBB) that we used in the treatment of idiopathic adolescent scoliosis. Prospective. Thirty-six consecutive patients (18 females and 18 males) with adolescent idiopathic scoliosis (AIS) were treated with a hybrid brace (HBB) system including a 3-piece modular articulated brace (HBB-3P), a separate torso sleeve, and a patient-matched occipital cap (HBB-3P-OC). The Milwaukee brace and Chêneau brace plus the Scoliosis Research Society (SRS)-22 questionnaire, and a 10-item pain scale. The patients were all treated by the same surgeon. The mean preoperative Cobb angle was 43.6° and the mean kyphosis angle was 17.1°. The mean follow-up was 22.1 months. The mean correction rate of the Cobb angle was 22% and the mean correction rate of the kyphosis angle was 15.7%. The mean preoperative 6-item Oswestry Disability Index was 50.8 points and the mean postoperative 6-item Oswestry Disability Index was 15.3 points. The mean pain intensity on the 10-point visual analog scale decreased from 4.8 points preoperatively to 2.

The refusal of the pioneer) is a 1991 Italian drama film directed by Giuseppe Piccioni and starring Monica Guerritore, Bob Hoskins and Beppe Severgnini. The film is based on the book Il rifiuto del pioniere by Ernesto Ferrero. The idea of the film was first announced in 1990, when Gianni Amelio, producer of the film, announced that he was seeking a director to work on the film. Amelio wanted a film that would draw on the history of the Sicilian peasantries, as represented in a 19th-century ditati novel La danza delle rose published in 1902 by Ernesto Ferrero, the film's author. A director was ultimately chosen, in 1990, when Giuseppe Piccioni's brother Mirella, who had previously worked with Luciano Odorisio and Francesco Maselli, was hired. Piccioni was already working with the title Il rifiuto del pioniere, as he had co-written the script with Luciano Odorisio. The producers of the film had spent a long time looking for the role of the principal character, with many actors from the theatre and other film industries having been considered, but it was not until Beppe Severgnini agreed to play the role that the film could begin pre-production. Initially, Bob Hoskins was the only actor to be cast in the film; he eventually dropped out, and was replaced by Beppe Severgnini.

While developing the film, Piccioni was keen to develop the character of the character of Francesco who had been the subject of the novel Ferrero had written; they were given the names of Francesco (played by Beppe Severgnini) and Rosa (played by Monica Guerritore). The name of Francesco
