*_Adobe Photoshop Elements_ is a program that has many of the same features as Photoshop, but is not as robust or as capable. It is great for small images and will be ideal for beginners. ## Graphics Software Solutions for Windows One of the most common problems that beginning students run into when they start out is that they find graphics software solutions that are too complicated to understand. This problem usually stems from the fact that the user first picks up a program and starts using it, but the program's interface is too confusing or difficult for the novice to understand. In addition, beginners often have to spend hours searching through the program's options and settings dialog boxes in an attempt to figure out how the program works. Many of the graphic design options in this list are designed for beginners. When selecting a program, your first choice should be one that has at least three broad categories of tools. These categories include • Graphics/Painting: Tools for creating graphics with a brush, pencil, eraser, and other tools • Organization: Tools for putting together, laying out, and organizing graphics and other elements • Layout: Tools for drawing or laying out the page on which the graphics and other elements will be placed This chapter talks mostly about the types of graphics software solutions that are designed to be used for graphics. (No programs are listed for designing logos or other forms of branding, such as writing tags or labels.) Also, most of the software applications discussed here are designed for graphics as opposed to being able to be used for both graphics and text (although many do incorporate some text functions as well).

Dual time-point 18F-FDG PET/CT imaging with an integrated system for quantification of radiotracer uptake. The aim of this study was to develop a fully integrated system for quantitative measurement of 2-[fluorine-18]-fluoro-2-deoxy-D-glucose (FDG) uptake and validate its reliability by combining time-point acquisition. In 35 patients (20-76 years), a simultaneous PET/computed tomography (CT) acquisition protocol was used to assess the reproducibility of the quantitative analysis. To validate the method, 64 patients were recruited. Twenty patients underwent a standard PET/CT scan at 2 h after injection. Another 44 patients underwent dynamic imaging from 30 min to 2 h after tracer injection. The uptake of FDG in the primary tumor was expressed as maximum standardized uptake values (SUVmax), the percent of SUVmax in blood SUV, the liver, and the mediastinal blood pool. The in vivo internal mass correction method was applied to the reconstructed images. The SUVmax of liver and mediastinal blood pool showed no statistically significant difference between the 2 time points ($P > 0.05$). However, a significant difference was observed for the liver SUVmax, which was lower at the 2-h time point ($P = 0.001$). Waitress, the Alamo Drafthouse's latest movie from director Niki Caro, is a wickedly smart comedy that offers a searingly emotional vision of a man's descent into self-destructive obsession with a would-be prom date. Bill (Colin Farrell) can't find anything he likes about his job working at a quaint restaurant in the Texas desert, so he quits in order to focus on his writing. Back in New York City, Bill has plunged into a downward spiral, neglecting his best friend Mary (A Q: Web Image resizing still missing Today I got a major surprise. I was searching for ways to resize images in a page but didn't find the "resize an image" option. The picture re-sizes well but I still need the old one. Maybe someone knows what I do wrong? PS. I already tried to search in google for a tutorial but couldn't find any. A: Well I found it. It's really simple you just do like this: `$(document).ready(function () { $("img").responsive({ width: "100%" }); });` This is not a css resizing but a javascript method, that makes your image sizes responsive. This will only work with the latest browsers. Ask HN: Will some kind of entrepreneur visa be created? - nateable It seems like the biggest problem for entrepreneurs in the world right now is that the most common jobs in the world are not available to many people, and at present immigrants (which could be entrepreneurs, or anyone looking for a job) are ineligible to do the most common job in the world (tech startup founder). I'd like to suggest that the governments of the world form a treaty to allow entrepreneurs from anywhere in the world to create startups anywhere in the world. The goal would be to allow people from every country to live in every other country, without the hassle of visas and other permission structures that we need to live and work and innovate and create here in the US. I'd like to see this form of brain-drain be encouraged because it would encourage entrepreneurship in the countries where it is harder to innovate and create things, and in the US it would mean less bureaucracy, and better entrepreneurs overall. ===== mindcrime I think you're probably going to need some kind of international guild/trade association to get something like this going. But it wouldn't hurt to poll the current small towns and rural areas of the US to see what kind of support there might be.
