Pioneering Australian doctor George Cunningham receives the first Nobel Prize for Medicine On January 6, 1919, the first Nobel Prize awarded for Medicine was given to George Cunningham, an Australian physician and pathologist. Cunningham was first trained as a medical practitioner at the St Vincent's Hospital in Brisbane, Australia. He then went on to study at the University of Queensland, and afterwards to train as a Pathologist at the Royal Pathological Institute in London. While in London, Cunningham had shown interest in the study of infectious diseases and employed his passion as an assistant Pathologist for the Royal Army Medical Corps. His curiosity in the causes of infectious diseases led him to focus his studies on the bacteria that cause tuberculosis. This work led to the discovery of the tuberculosis germs and an understanding of the principles of how they cause disease. Around the same time, Cunningham had also made progress in the study of fungal diseases, and was able to use this knowledge to help create an antifungal drug, which became known as "Auramine," that we now use for the control of fungus infections. Cunningham returned to Australia in 1907 to take up a position at the Walter and Eliza Hall Laboratory in Melbourne, and later became lecturer at the University of Melbourne, and Director of the Department of Tropical Pathology. In 1911, he was appointed the first Professor of Pathology at the University of Sydney, a position he held for 20 years.

Cunningham was a controversial figure, as he was vocal in his criticism of the Australian government's approach to public health policy. He felt that the government paid inadequate attention to the

![CCleaner Professional 6.39.6399 Slim KeygenCrack Crack](Q: How to change value of radio buttons in an angular controller? I'm trying to make a small project that would have five radio buttons (f1,f2,f3,f4,f5) and I would like each radio button to be answered with "ok" or "cancel". I'm trying to change the value of each radio button in my angular controller. I tried different things but none of them seems to work. Can someone help me please? Thanks
