There are a number of things you'll want to keep in mind if you're traveling with a pet means. Many people who have cats understand that they need to have them spayed or neutered in order to get them on an airplane. However, there is a long list of other things you'll want to consider before you decide to bring your cat along for the flight. If you're traveling with a cat, you'll want to make sure you have the right kind of airline ticket for your cat. You'll also need to consider whether you want your cat to travel as an inside or an outside passenger. If you're bringing an older cat as an inside passenger, you'll want to make sure that you're going to have some time to spend with your cat at the destination. Going as an outside passenger is a good choice for a younger cat or for a cat with a particular preference for being in outside passenger, but they're not without risk. If your cat escapes in the cabin, you won't be able to control where it goes.
