Speaking to GameSpot, EA's Art Director Ian Livingstone and Executive Producer Craig Sullivan spoke at length about the game, and while FIFA World Cup 98 remains the high point of the series, FIFA '21 is right up there with the best looking football games ever made. "We really wanted to take the visuals to a new level this year," said Sullivan. "If you've seen the new cars in the game, if you've seen the new player models, if you've seen the new match day experience, we wanted to enhance the visuals for that." Livingstone said FIFA '21 also has unique "player models" including "elastic" limbs, "realistic animations" and "realistic lighting." "There's a lot of technical stuff that goes into making these players move," he added. He said the actual animation of the players, which was previously done in separate animation streams, was now done in one animation stream.
