Stem Resolver is a toolset devoted to computer graphics, it includes a collection of fast and efficient algorithms for the resolution of strokes and curves. It is available for C/C++, Delphi, Object Pascal, Builder, FLEX/MXS, Ace, C#.NET, Java, C++ Builder, LPerl, Visual FoxPro, C, BashShell. The library includes algorithms for most geometrical tasks in digital and animation. But the main focus of this library is the efficient and complete solution of the Full Contour Stroke problem. The algorithms solve this problem by using only simple primitives, thus minimizing memory requirements and keeping graphic performance close to 90%. It allows you to clip a layer to another layer or to a specific region. Clipping regions may be regular (usually rectangular) or irregular (ex. circles, polygons, or text). Features: · It is very easy to use, like any other Photoshop command; · Multiple clipping regions can be applied at once; · Allows you to hide/show a clipping region while the image is still visible; · Allows you to invert the selection and unselect the clip; · Allows you to select multiple layers, even nested layers, using one of the clips; · Allows you to highlight the invisible region of a clipping region; · Allows you to select an arbitrary region of an image (clip it to another layer) using one of the clips; · Allows you to copy/paste/cut between regions (using the clipping option); · Allows you to add a line to the clipping mask of the entire image or of a given layer; · Allows you to create a new mask from an existing one by intersecting two masked layers; · Allows you to convert a clipping region into an image region or an image mask; · Allows you to split a clipping region and merge it back into one region; · Allows you to export layers to vector graphic formats such as SVG and PDF; · Allows you to perform basic image transformations such as rotation, resize, text, and filters (blur, sharpen, rotate,...); · Allows you
