ShimExt

Choose what happens when you double-click a file extension in the Explore window. If you double-click a filename or the extension of a filename in the Finder, you're presented with a list of actions that can be performed on it. The 'Open With' list is not usually the only way to choose what happens when you double-click a file. For example, when you double-click a disk image file to access its contents, you're presented with an 'Open With' option that gives you the choice of using Disk Utility to restore the disk image file to a disk partition or using another application. If you're looking for a way to 're-name' files quickly, 'ShimExt' provides an intuitive way to change the filename of a file from its current name to a user-defined name. If you want to make a backup of your files in case something happens to them, you may want to consider backing up the entire drive instead of just what's on your desktop. OS X will be able to create a file archive of your entire system if you follow these steps: First off you need to know what kind of backup you are doing. You can choose among different types of backup options: Automatic backup - Create a backup when you have connected your iMac, notebook or Mac laptop to a network with a shared drive. DVD/CD backup - Create a backup of your computer to a DVD or CD. Remote backup - Backup your computer from another computer. To backup your Mac: Press and hold the Option key while powering on your Mac. This will boot you into Single User Mode. Click the Apple menu, select Utilities, and then choose Terminal. Click the Return key and enter these commands: `sudo /sbin/fsck -fy /dev/sda1` To list the free space left on your Mac's hard drive, open Disk Utility. The name of the free space will appear in the device list in the upper right hand corner. To backup your data using Time Machine: Open Finder and go to the Time Machine icon in the left column. Make sure the Back Up Now radio button is selected. Click the Restore Backup button to boot into Time Machine. If you want to create a complete backup of your Mac using a DVD or external hard drive: Open Finder and select the Time Machine icon in

What's New in the?

This will allow you to add, change or delete items from a folder/files open in Windows Explorer. Adding or changing files Right click the "placeholder" files in a folder and choose "Copy As" or "Move As" to add or change the file content. Rename files Also, files can be renamed in Windows Explorer from the "dialog" presented when you right-click a file or folder. Create Shortcuts You can use the "copy" or "move" functionality as in the normal context menu to create shortcuts or to create a new folder. Destination folders In addition, you can set the destination folders that you want to copy files to and delete them from. To add a destination folder, simply click in the "list" of the destination folders, and after that a new folder will be inserted. The location of the destination folder appears in the title bar (this location is also copied to the clipboard). Destination folders can be dragged and dropped, even if there are file or folders in the current folder. "Recursive" mode The function is also available in "recursive" mode. This means that it scans all subfolders and all the files in the folder selected. Emailing a file When you send the file, the name and the date of the file will be copied to the recipients email inbox. Note: Only files which are selected in Windows Explorer are sent. Here are the features of the first version of this application that were available in the previous version, and that it are now available in this version. 1) Tabbed interface This application has now a tabbed interface in order to make more intuitive the use, as we can see in this view. 2) Copying/Pasting/Dumping/Rename functions There is a graphical interface, as the following photo: 3) Color: The colors on the dialogs can be changed. 4) Drag and drop: You can also drag and drop documents and folders from Windows Explorer to this application. 5) Non-normal Explorer context menu functions You can use the "Copy As", "Move As", "Rename" functions in the normal context menu of Windows Explorer. 6) More options: For example, if we want to compare the current selection with a previous selection, and to delete files that we have already selected, we can see it here: 2.0.
