Proposal for a new classification of fibromyalgia. A new classification of fibromyalgia (FM) is proposed. The results of a retrospective analysis of a series of 40 patients with FM referred to an outpatient rheumatology clinic for evaluation of chronic pain (mostly idiopathic, polyarthritic, or systemic rheumatologic disorders) were analyzed. The classification proposed is based on the clinical features of FM. Briefly, it comprises pain syndromes with a myofascial or neuropathic component, a component of physiological stress, an organicity component, a symptomatic component, and a component of general disability. The latter can be divided into intrinsic disability (eg, depression), and external disability (eg, unemployment) in order to emphasize the latter. The fundamental characteristic of FM is that it is a disorder of functioning, rather than a disorder of structure. This should help to distinguish it from rheumatologic disorders. The proposed classification has two main advantages: it may help to identify patients who will benefit from specific therapies, and it can help to establish the true prevalence of FM in the general population..06 - have them charge her for the $2500 they received (per the note above) and prepare her for surgery. Then, they can decide whether or not to move forward with what they have planned. That all being said, I think that it is certainly not our place to go to the extent of "storming" in and telling the district attorney's office that they are making a mistake. I would be more concerned about the PR potential and any legal ramifications that the district attorney's office could use as a basis for said decision (for example, what role is ENRON playing if we are the subject of this criminal investigation?). -Stacy "Lynn, Scott" on 11/07/2000 11:29:18 AM To: "Miller, Stacy" cc: Subject: RE: Turn in Regarding the attorney mentioned below, did you call her today? If so, could you please let me know what she said. Thanks. Lynn -----Original Message----- From: Miller, Stacy [Stacy.Miller@enron.com] Sent

Creating a custom brush in Photoshop is a quick and simple process, and you can create extremely useful brushes in a matter of minutes. Creating a custom brush in Photoshop is a quick and simple process, and you can create extremely useful brushes in a matter of minutes. Once you get a custom brush made, you can use it for countless effects. For instance, you could use it to clean up a portrait or repair a crumpled poster. Once you've drawn your first brush in Photoshop, you can edit it in several ways. You can control the size, shape, opacity, and style. To edit your brush, select it and hit F4. This gives you the option to change the size, style, and opacity of the brush. When creating the brush you can change the size, style, and opacity of the brush. Once you've got your brush setup, you can use it to create new effects. Here are some useful effects that use your custom brush: When drawing on your canvas, you can use this brush to clean up the edges of your drawing or to erase mistakes. You can also use it to create smoke or faux fire effects. You can change the size, style, and opacity to create custom effects. Here is an image that was damaged by a corrupt font: Here is the image with the font, and the font from the top layer (with a 20% opacity) Here is the image after I clean up the font. The results are incredible! You can use your custom brush to erase anything you want out of a photo. For example, you can clean up your photos and remove all of the unwanted elements in your photo. You can go to Filter > Blur > Gaussian Blur to create a blurry background. To simulate a setting sun, use the Gradient Overlay filter. You can make the background fade from black to white and round the edges of the image. I will show you how to make this filter in the Advanced Effects in Photoshop class. You can use this effect to create bright and colored washes. For more examples of the types of custom brushes you can make, check out our complete Photoshop brush class. If you're looking for the best out of Photoshop, you've reached the right place. Now, let's get started! You have a custom brush ready to be used on your next project. Great! Now what
