Players can work with these data to unlock a new level of unprecedented and realistic in-game interaction with the ball. As the player moves, the ball moves with them so they can make acute decisions on what they need to do to score a goal, intercept a ball or carry out a perfect tackle. FIFA is the leading video game series in the soccer category, with more than 170 million copies sold and the best selling videogame of the decade. The Football Association of Jamaica celebrated the premiere of the new trailer today at the country's Sugar Industries development zone in West Kingston. It was attended by Zalka Williams, the wife of Prime Minister Andrew Holness, who's husband led the Association when it organised the Pepsi Uprising this past summer. The Association is organising a free football day at the Zone for kids on June 24 with Spalding, ensuring that no Jamaican boy or girl is left behind as the nation gears up for FIFA on June 26.
