When the user sends the request the email process starts. If the user sends the request again in the middle of the process the application writes to the database an audit info about a process and the message "mail was sent again". For the mail sending I use the smtp client from here: At the end of the email sending process I use the method: - (void)mailComposeController:(MFMailComposeViewController*)controller didFinishWithResult:(MFMailComposeResult)result error:(NSError*)error { if (result == MFMailComposeResultSent) {
[self dismissModalViewControllerAnimated:YES]; } }

Apple Watch Series 2 continues to trump the competition. In just its first two months on the market, the Apple Watch has taken over as the most popular smartwatch, according to a December 2015 study by Consumer Intelligence Research Partners. Even more telling, Apple Watch's success isn't limited to the US; it's also off to an equally successful start in the UK, as indicated by the fact that it's now the most popular smartwatch sold in the UK. In fact, the Apple Watch is now so wildly successful that it's putting the watches of rival vendors out of business. Traditional Swiss manufacturers, who have dominated the watchmaking industry since the turn of the century, are struggling to keep up with Apple's aggressive expansion into the smartwatch market. Apple Watch Series 2: The Key to Its Success As a result, Apple has the potential to become the next Swiss watchmaker, and it's already making serious inroads. Unlike previous generations of Apple watches, there are no notches, holes, or anything else on the body of Series 2 Apple Watch. Instead, the stainless steel case sports a smooth clean look, leaving no gap between its edges and the user's wrist. For those not used to having something as utilitarian as a smartwatch on their wrist, the look can be off-putting. However, once
